Former Tory Charges Party Is Playing One Part of Country Against the Other

By Darcy O'Donnell
OTTAWA, Sept. 13.—(CP)—Bona Arsenault, former president of the Progressive Conservative Association in Quebec, told the Commons yesterday that he had left the party because a certain element had resumed the policy of "playing one part of the country against the other," and of stirring up prejudice against Quebec.

Mr. Arsenault, elected as an independent in the general election of June 11, said he now was drawing his support behind the Liberal government because he believed it represented the only national party in Canada. He represents the Quebec constituency of Bonaventure.

He continued: "For many years a certain element in the Conservative party could not find any better solution for some of our most crucial problems than to play one part of the country against the other, and to stir up and spread prejudice against one-third of the population of our country, and to capitalize upon after work, month after month, until the resentment they themselves helped to develop in certain sections of Canada against the Province of Quebec."

ELEMENT KEPT QUIET

This element was kept quiet for about a year and a half after John Bracken, national Progressive Conservative leader, was chosen party president in a Winnipeg convention in 1932.

"Then came the Saskatchewan provincial election and the sweeping victory of the CCF over the Progressive Conservative party, and the defeat of the Bloc Populaire in the Quebec election, while the Bloc Populaire apparently was making decisive headway in Quebec and where Mr. Arsenault, manager of an insurance company in Quebec."

"That was enough for the highly inspired strategists of the Progressive Conservative party to change their minds about Winnipeg, and throw into the waste paper basket the gentlemen's agreement which had been arrived at there after long days and nights of laborious discussions in committee rooms."

RESUME OLD POLICIES

"Then came the return to former policies, and they wonder why they were so badly defeated in the last polling day, and they wonder why an ex-Conservative like myself should be standing now on this side of the House supporting the Liberal administration."

There was less of a personal touch to remarks of other speakers. Mr. MacInnis criticized the government for its lack of reconstruction plans. Mr. Blackmore called for monetary reform as the solution of the country's problems. Mr. Gagnon expressed approval of plans to adopt a national flag and to make Ottawa a national metropolis.

When debate concluded for the day royal assent was given in the Senate to bills authorizing expenditure of $40,000,000 for war and demobilization purposes, in the next two months and of more than $25,000,000 for civil administration purposes in the next month.

In both the Senate and the Commons were heard suggestions that the government adopt the just transferable vote system in federal elections.

URGES COMMITTEE

Senator John Haig, Progressive Conservative leader in the Upper House, advocated appointment of a committee that would study application of the transferable vote in the Commons. Col. Ross asked for the change in the voting system as about the members of the present Commons were elected by a minority vote.

Mr. Arsenault said Maj.-Gen. O. R. Pearkes, V.C. (P.C.Namoi) had stated in Commons Tuesday that if a man in the army could not speak English and wished to obtain his discharge, all he had to do was go to the sergeant major and say: "Me no speak de English."

Gen. Pearkes, as former general officer commanding the Pacific Command, "knew better than that," but he is keeping straight in line with the Progressive Conservative way of playing ball.

Mr. Arsenault said he had attended the Winnipeg convention and that he and other young men had thought after the selection of Mr. Bracken that the adoption of a new platform that "we had got rid of the Tory element."

Mr. Bracken, for whom he still had such admiration, kept the element quiet for more than a year and he grew popular in all parts of Canada, including Quebec. But the element broke out again following the developments in Saskatchewan and Quebec.

This action had consolidated the Liberal hold on Quebec, and the long-term result was that the Progressive Conservative party had been thrown away for many years to the Liberals, and the chances of being elected to office.

ONLY WAR SAVINGS

The governor of the Bank of Canada, Graham Towers, had declared that the Victory Bonds and the War Saving Certificates bought by Canadians during the war had represented the only source of savings many Canadians were ever able to build up. It was strange that there had to be a war to enable the people to save money.

The government could not formulate any proper reconstruction plan, it had, however, declared under its control the economy of the country which was needed to provide full employment. And the task of providing full employment could not be accomplished if it was approached as the government was approaching it from the wrong end.

There was a lack of co-operation between the government and labor. There was a feeling among labor that there was a conspiracy between the government and big business to reduce wages as soon as possible.

CLUB INCORRECT

Labour Minister Mitchell interjected that the statement was incorrect and was a reflection on everyone in the Commons. Mr. MacInnis said wages paid to seamen by the Port Steamship Company, owned by the government, were lower than those paid by any other company in Canada. New laws were being introduced before the National War Labor Board to correct the war risk bonus.

Munitions Minister Howe said he had never heard of such a thing. He understood Mr. MacInnis had been so informed, said Mr. Mitchell.

He asked Mr. Mitchell if the application had been made. Mr. Mitchell understood it had, said Mr. Mitchell.

Mr. Mitchell suggested that ministers get together and hold a conference before contradicting each other.

CHARGES CONFUSION

The Progressive Conservative party was confused in its thinking. Speakers called for an end of confusion and at the same time for government action.

"Well, you can't have it," he said, "because the government cannot produce action much as they want. As far as this group is concerned, it is a waste of time for the government and we are prepared to give the government the necessary control to enable it to take action."

Mr. Blackmore said the Liberal, Progressive Conservative and CCF parties had the wrong conception of where the government could get the money it needed to administer the country properly. The Liberals and Progressive Conservatives believed the government's revenue depended on how much could be squeezed out of the people.

The CCF called for state ownership as enterprise as a source of revenue, but this was only another means of taxing the people. The Social Credit party believed the money available to the government was directly in proportion to the value of goods and services the country could produce.

NATION CAN PRODUCE

Canada was capable of producing all that was needed to provide a high standard of living, to improve educational and health standards, and to provide for all the needs of the people.

He said that Canada would not be able to bear her share of supplying the needs through continued mutual aid to countries less fortunate than her. It was necessary that Britain and the Commonwealth be strong in future, because too much help could not be placed in high sounding security agreements, however attractive such agreements might be.

He recalled the fate of the League of Nations and said that was much talk of trying German was a criminal. He wondered if some thought might not be given to trying Commonwealth and United States leaders for neglecting to keep their countries prepared.

The Commonwealth countries had been left unprepared because they were deluded by the idea that there was no source from which they could obtain the money needed for military expansion.

"We must not become victims of the 'commonwealth' lie," he said.

TO PRESERVE FREEDOM

Mr. Gagnon, elected as an Independent not sitting on the Liberal side, he proposed to preserve the freedom of action and independence from all political parties. Believing it his duty to further the interests and greatness of Canada, he proposed to co-operate with government authorities and would give the government support in any measures which he believed to promote the good of the country.

evening. Purpose of holding this meeting was to discuss the situation of business affecting the Edmonton butchers.

Two telegrams, from Lethbridge and Toronto, expressed opposition to the meeting. They were in response to inquiries wired earlier by the local meat dealers' association.

Ferry exchanges, from members of both sexes characterized the discussion periods as temper flared under the stimulus of opposing opinion, and from time to time pandemonium resulted from a barrage of creative motions and amendments.

One person came with a prepared resolution which was also adopted by the meeting. The verbatim wording was as follows:

VERY LITTLE REDUCTION

"In view of the fact that the retail butchers are definitely of the opinion that the rationing of meat makes very little, if any reduction, in the amount of meat consumed, and, 'Whereas, the meat rationing system, being introduced by the Dominion government will lead to reactions and contentious situations in the retail meat stores, and,

"Whereas, reliable reports indicate that Canada has a larger number of cattle on the farms and ranches than ever before and at the present time farmers are finding it difficult to dispose of their cattle, therefore,

"Let it be resolved that the rationing of meat be abandoned and that we instruct the Dominion government to introduce a policy that will encourage the greater production of meat and that the producer will get a fair price on all grades and the retailer be relieved of the annoyance and extra work entailed by rationing."

"SPRING OVERNIGHT"

"They spring it on us overnight."

shouted a tall, brawny member of the audience. After that the meeting was adjourned. It took the government three months to figure out this ration scheme and it took the butchers three months to figure out how to fight it. With their radio broadcasts and advertisements the government says they educated the public, but Donald Gordon's broadcasts are not inflected to people who are not their buyers, figure it out for yourself," he said.

Another angle of meat rationing was raised when the speaker referred to what he said was variation in the amount of meat used in the preparation of hamburgers in various cases. "One place makes 13 hamburgers out of eight pounds of meat and another one that I know of makes 10 out of six pounds—figure it out for yourself," he said.

One feminine member was in favor of letting the meat parking plants handle the rationing of Edmonton's meat requirements.

W. Labonte and Judore Boudre, butchers from Morinville, were among those who declaimed on the "hardship caused to farmers who at this busy season with everything going wrong are unable to sell their hogs," shouting cries.

GREAT CONFUSION

Mr. Labonte recalled that on the first day there had been so much confusion attending the coupons and tokens that he took them in one instance, gave the customer his purchase, and completely forgot about the money. He added that apparently the customer was so confused that she had forgotten, too.

W. R. Wells, secretary of the Edmonton Retail Meat Merchants' Association, stated that since the introduction of rationing his business had dropped at least 40 per cent. Following his statement a number of butchers said they had experienced a similar dropping off of business.

A patriotic note was struck when one member drew attention to the current situation in Canada of thousands of ex-servicemen and women who had spent years away from home suffering among other things a very real need. "Is that playing the game with our boys and girls?" he challenged.

large sums of money at the particular machines.

Police investigated, and Constables W. H. Warner and T. H. Keefe picked up the trio just as they were leaving the track.

The constables decided to take them to Charlottetown for further questioning, and they entered the automobile in which the three were travelling.

LAUNDRY DROVE CAR

Jensen, as Lauson, drove the car since the constables at that time did not know the three men's identities. They left the track and had gone only a few miles when Lauson ditched the car.

The women stepped out and while the constables were waiting here the two men pulled guns from their pockets.

Warner seized Lauson before he could get his gun, shooting him in the back of the head. He was hit in the other man, according to police.

They later confined the three men under further questioning by police.

Announcement of the arrest came a day after it was revealed that police had uncovered $300,000 in stolen bonds near the former Charlottetown, Que. district highway of the Lauson. At Toronto, Ontario provincial police said the bonds, biggest single cache ever found in Canada crime annals, were believed to have come from the B&O. One bank which was robbed Aug. 20. If this is confirmed, it will be the biggest bank robbery in the Dominion's history.

Another associate, Joseph Pelletier, 19, who was shot in a Montreal bank several weeks ago when he attempted to cash $200,000 in stolen bonds, still is in hospital with a wound wound that has been open since the day of the robbery. Lauson and Pelletier were joined by Max Jensen following their escape from Waterloo County Jail at Kitchener, Ont. They were then leaving on charges of a bank hold-up at Act. Ont. in which Jensen was shot and wounds were made.

Canadian Ketch, a native of Ontario, had been in the RCMP for some time. He is now in the north country where he was stationed in the Northwest Territories, in a detachment in Charleyville, two weeks ago.

Edmonton RCMP headquarters said Thursday they had no record of a Canadian Ketch. The man is believed to have been in the north country where he was stationed in the Northwest Territories, in a detachment in Charleyville, two weeks ago.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By ALAN HARVEY

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—(CP)—Tip for Brantford, Ont. hockey officials: If you're looking for a timekeeper, there's a newcomer in the city who thinks hockey, every one on the team. His name is Frank Barotetta and he's itching for action.

Barotetta left Brantford last week from Sudbury, where he lived for 22 years, served as Canadian National Railway telegraph agent and between times earned a reputation as timekeeper extraordinaire.

"He wouldn't miss a hockey game if he had to punch through snow 10 feet deep," says Northern Ontario hockey official Mike Silverman. Barotetta, who attended every hockey game in Sudbury for 18 years, his tenure as timekeeper is believed longer than all others except Bill Long, official timekeeper of Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

Silverman says Barotetta always played down his punctuality before every game. He says he was tired of the publicity he wouldn't sure if he could make the game. But no provision for a substitute was ever made, because everyone knew Frank would be there, the watch in hand, ready for action.

The law of compensation probably accounts for his punctuality before the timekeeper's job. Always deeply interested in sport, he was permitted from participating actively in athletics when an accident forced amputation of an arm at the age of 14.

The second game of a scheduled doubleheader was postponed because of rain and the two teams will play a twilight-night twin bill tonight.

District News in Brief

Taking this district as a whole, the yield is far below average, although farmers are taking good advantage of the ideal weather to garner what returns are available.

Session of Labor Parley Is Fiery: BLACKFOOT, Lancashire, Eng. Sept. 15.—(CP)—British trade unionists barred protests yesterday at George Meany, American Federation of Labor secretary-treasurer, after he told the 7th annual Trades Union Congress here his supporters refused to sit in the new world labor organization with "the so-called representatives of Russian labor."

Russian worker groups were not really trade unions but "official branches of the government and of its ruling dictatorial party," said Mr. Meany, American fraternal delegate, whose lengthy speech in which he also attacked the Congress of Industrial Organizations produced the congress' most turbulent session.

The American representative's speech, which drew shouts of "honor" and "shame" followed by a speech by Prime Minister Aneurin Bevan, who bluntly told the powerful session of his Labor government supporters that he could hold out no hope of great improvements in living conditions in the near future.

The first British prime minister to appear before a TUC meeting, he urged the delegates to discuss, however, with the disclosure of a speech which would continue to flow to the United Kingdom from Canada.

A NEW ruling issued by the department of veterans affairs now permits veterans to draw their re-establishment credits for the purpose of forming or buying into partnerships.

This ruling has removed one of the main causes for complaint in the administration of these credits, and has paved the way for the reestablishment of a lot of veterans.

It will be particularly welcome to those groups of servicemen who, during the past years in the service have formed friendships to pool their talents and their varied talents for their mutual good. It will also permit men who may lack experience in a certain line of business to gain their experience as junior partners under older and more experienced men.

Partnerships have been frowned upon because the departmental officers were afraid that a lot of them would be victimized by unscrupulous persons. Now the department has decided that they will take the responsibility of investigating each application for a partnership to see whether or not they think it will work out to the benefit of the veterans.

ACCEPT RESPONSIBILITY
They won't give their approval to anything that doesn't seem like a real business proposition. A lot of requests are going to be turned down and as a result there are going to be a lot of veterans with complaints of discrimination but it is good to see departmental officers willing to accept responsibility of this kind.

There are a lot of veterans who are going to have $2,000, $3,000 and more when they total up their credit and savings that.

Edmonton Business
Here 35 Years
Thirteen Was Not Unlucky
For Edmonton Business Man

Thirteen may be an unlucky number in the estimation of many people, but not in the estimation of Norman L. Hamly, founder of Hamly Press Ltd., and well known Edmontonian for the last 35 years. For it was on Sept. 13, 1930, that Mr. Hamly first came to Edmonton and decided to make this city his future home.

"I've never regretted it," he said today, in recalling that he came west as a harvester, visited after already located here and was to work with the natural location and future possibilities of the city that he decided to locate here.

It was the Edmonton as it was then, even then you could see its possibilities," he said. "and I am firmly convinced as I was then that it is only starting now to be what it can be one of western and northern Canada's greatest cities."

BORN IN ONTARIO
Born in Port Hope Ont. where he first learned the printing trade. As a young man, and from 1906 to 1908 working at the printing trade in Denver, Colo. At the end of that time he went back to Port Hope and started his own printing and books and stationery business.

"For ten years I built up quite good business and was destroyed by fire one night, leaving me exactly where I started," he said. "The business of the house I still owned at 927 1/2 street. The staff at that time consisted of only four men, but after 18 months the growth of the business necessitated a move to new premises on 101 street, and we remained there until we needed larger premises, and then moved to the site now occupied by the Birks building. When the Birks building was erected we moved to our present location at 1004 1/2 street. The staff had been increased, and now we have a permanent staff of 28, with at times 40 or more during rush seasons."

Mr. Hamly's family had meanwhile been growing up, and he had been joined in the business by his two sons, Herbert G. Hamly and S. Colby Hamly, the former now being manager and the latter secretary-treasurer of the company. The company is still expanding, and is now larger premises at the same address.

OWN BUSINESS
After eight years in the business of Mr. Hamly decided to strike out on his own and founded The Hamly Press.

"It was a small beginning," he said. "I had a small beginning."

Expect Heavy Gunfire Barrage
When Nimrods Swing Into Action

With restrictions on ammunition ended and unlimited quantities of gasoline available for the first time in three years, Alberta hunters in the hundreds are likely to make the early days of September, Sept. 15, with a heavy barrage of gunfire as the season for hunting duck and geese is officially opened throughout the province.

Ducks are expected to be generally numerous in the St. Lawrence and other areas where they have been raising considerable damage to game departments.

The situation as regards geese is not so promising as the ducks. The weather is too warm for geese, and will take some heavy frosts to bring them down from the north. In large numbers, one spokesman said.

The season for duck and geese is expected to open on Sept. 15 at the latest, and close on Dec. 15 at the latest.

CLOSE SEASON
There is a closed season this year on chicken, grouse and Hungarian partridge. Shooting of these is prohibited in the usual areas designed as sanctuaries.

Maximum daily bag of duck per individual hunter is 20 providing all birds shot are mallard. If they are not mallard 10 per person is the daily limit.

Five geese may be shot each day. The season for geese is expected to open on Sept. 15 at the latest, and close on Dec. 15 at the latest.

The British people are not afraid of hard work. They are rolling up their sleeves and getting ready to win their way through the critical days of peace. Miss Helen Macdonald, supervisor of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs in England, said that the British people have a high standard of living. "True and a half years of bombing and fighting have taught the women in Britain to think. They know that the price of liberty is eternal vigilance," Miss Reid told her audience.

ONLY NINE CLUBS

Where at the start of war there were only nine business women's clubs, now there are 110, she said. Women have learned that they can do anything alone and are one vast nation of disorganizers, she explained.

Men and women who were not publicly concerned before the war now feel a sense of responsibility. This year's election, with its per cent of voters going to the polls, is a sign of this. They are keenly interested in their future.

Chief problems facing Britain today are that of housing, she said. Between four and five million houses must be built, and the government, recognizing the need, has given housing priority.

EXPRESSING CONFIDENCE

Expressing confidence in the new government, Miss Reid remarked that the Labor party in Britain was an old and experienced one and had stability. Plans were being made to extend social security to all.

One of the things which British is proudest, she declared, is the new Education Act of 1944. By this education had been streamlined in four fields: Modern nursery schools, primary, secondary and adult education. Children over 16 who must work will still be required to attend college at least one day a week, at the expense of the employer, she said.

HEAD TABLE

Seated at the head table were: Mrs. Vera Campbell, Miss Elsie Kirby, Miss Margaret Fraser, Miss Elsie MacNeil, Mrs. W. W. McBain, Miss Isabel MacNeil, Miss Mrs. Margaret Devlin, Mrs. S. H. ## Has Restful Night Tojo Now Showing Signs Of Wanting to Stay Alive

TOKYO, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Gen. Hideo Tojo, who tried to escape an Allied war criminal trial yesterday showed signs of wanting to live.

The former Japanese premier, who ordered the Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor, spent a restful night at an army hospital at Yokohama. This morning he ate a hearty breakfast and began to show some satisfaction with the excellent care he was given by the Americans since he tried to end his life two days ago.

During the night, Tojo took some fruit and juice and slept well. At breakfast, he had salmon and coffee.

Tojo told a physician he was suffering no pain from his gunshot wound behind the heart.

Dr. Col. James Perry, Tawell, G. chief surgeon, said he anticipated a change in Tojo's condition. The former premier's temperature had dropped from 100.4 degrees yesterday to 99.3 this morning. His breathing was normal.

Col. Perry said Tojo obviously now wants to live and he's much happier than when he arrived at the hospital.

Two military police are on constant guard at the door to his hospital room, and army nurses still are attending him. An interpreter stands by.

To Break Up Bomber Formations Nazis Had Rocket Plane Able To Climb 37,000 Feet a Minute

By EVERETT VILANDER
Editorial by The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, N. N., Sept. 12.—(BUP)—Just as the European war ended, the German Luftwaffe was preparing to launch a small, piloted experimental rocket plane called the "Viper" against Allied bomber formations. The air ministry revealed last night.

The Viper was described as a tiny aircraft with a 10-foot wingspan and a 10-foot fuselage. It was pushed into the air from a vertical position, pushed with the aid of auxiliary rockets which gave it a climbing speed of 37,000 feet per minute.

German experts hoped its battery rocket propellers would blast apart any bomber formations, making daylight precision raids impossible. However, it was a mere toy, the pilot was ejected automatically from the plane and destroyed by parachute. The rear half of the fuselage also became a parachute, and was parachuted to earth to be used again.

NO USE IN ACTION
The Viper was never used operationally against the Allies.

It was reported that the Germans' keen desire to develop new and radical types of aircraft kept the Luftwaffe from winning air supremacy even during the early days of the war.

They appeared to be a frantic competition among German designers to produce the most promising prototype only to see it discarded as a mere toy.
